SURPRISE STUNT WILL BE MUSIC IN AIR TONIGHT

Carnival Week to Open With Fine Concert Carried by Wireless Amplifier

MISSES TRANE AND LEIBEL GIVEN HANDSOME LAVALLIERES

Free-for-all Marching Club is Open to Citizens

The poet's conception of "music in the air" will be actually demonstrated in La Crosse Monday evening as a forerunner of one of the surprise stunts that has been prepared for the winter carnival.

By means of a wireless installation and a sound amplifier which Ben Ott and Raymond Gesell have rigged up over the Gesell store on Main street, a concert will be given lasting something like an hour. The apparatus was tested Sunday evening and found to be in good working order. Music and speech into the transmitter in the Gessell store was so magnified that it could be heard for a block or two out in the street.

It was suggested on Monday that an added feature of the carnival might be a street dancing party, with a phonograph or other musical instrument giving the tune through the loud-speaker. It is believed that hundreds of couples for a distance of a block or two on Main street and Fifth would be able to dance to such music.

Sends Souvenir

From Dr. Wendell A. Anderson, former mayor, there arrived on Monday at carnival headquarters a typical winter girl from Canada—a pair of snowshoes and buckskin moccasins of the sort worn by northern Indians for snowshoe running. They were souvenirs—the snowshoes but eight inches long and the moccasins of corresponding size, but all of the most careful Indian workmanship. They will be presented to Miss Dora Gunther, the queen, as remembrance of the occasion.

Queen Candidates Honored

The two runners-up in the queen contest, Miss Stella Trane and Miss Josephine Leibel, both of whom were close on the heels of the winner at the finish, were honored by the carnival committee on Monday with handsome lavalieres of pearls and garnets, which were accompanied by letters expressing thanks and appreciation of the committee for their efforts.

Following the line suggested by the Tribune and Leader-Press on Sunday when it offered prizes for the best unattached couples in costume in the carnival parades, the carnival committee on Monday announced the formation of a "come-all-ye marching club, to include everybody in costume who wants to be in on the fun and has no other club affiliation. The announcement was made as follows:

The Club Uniform and Parade committee of the carnival has realized for some time that there was going to be a lot of good citizens who wanted to uniform for the carnival and wanted to get into the parades with the rest. The committee wants every one in uniform in line and have organized a special club which will be open to every one not belonging to any other club. They have appointed Mr. W. D. McIntyre, who is a member of this committee, as captain of this special club. We understand that quite a few names are already enrolled and that they are going to give the club some real classy name and are working on some special features that may capture the special prize offered by the Carnival committee. Now get busy and join this club. Get in touch with Mr. McIntyre. You can find him at the Burroughs Adding Machine office, 522 State street. Phone 1377 evening call Phone 1377-R. Your place to form for the parades will be on Cass street, facing east towards south Third street, back of the Kiwanis club. Report at 7:15 P. M. for the evening parades and at 12:15 P. M. Thursday for the afternoon parade.

LENINE STILL REPORTED DEAD

COPENHAGEN.—Reports of the death of Nikolai Lenine, soviet Russian premier, are persisting, according to a Helsingfors dispatch to the Berlingske Tidende and the anti-bolshevik press claims to have further evidence of it. These newspapers regard as significant the fact that Lenine has not attended recent meetings of the soviet government officials, which were presided over by Leon Trotzky, minister of war.

Recent rumors of the death of Lenine apparently originated by the fact that the death of "M. Karkoff" was announced from Moscow and this announcement was coupled abroad with the statement that Karkoff was one of Lenine's pseudonyms. It was explained later however, that Karkoff was a prominent Russian chemist attached to Lenine's official staff.

Still later reports asserted Lenine was ill and had been ordered to take a long rest.

SENATE VOTES ON LAW TO REGULATE PACKING INDUSTRY

Decision in Ten-Year Dispute Over Legislation Expected Late in the Day

VOTE ON MEASURE WILL BE CLOSE SAY ADVOCATES

Voting on Bill and Amendments Set for Four O'clock

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A decision in the decade of congressional dispute over regulation of the meat packing was to be reached in the senate Monday with final voting set for late in the day on pending legislation.

Under a unanimous consent agreement voting on the bill and amendments was to begin at 4 p. m. without discussion. At 2 o'clock debate was to be cut five minutes for each senator. Advocates of the legislation conceded the vote would be close.

The bill up for disposal is known as the Gronna bill, which provides for federal regulation of meat packers, stockyards, commission men and other agencies of the meat industry by a new government livestock commission of three members appointed by the president at $10,000 salaries.

The Gronna bill also proposes a voluntary system of licensing packers instead of the compulsory plan of the original Kenyon-Kendrick measure for which the Gronna bill was prepared as a substitute measure.

The legislation has been advocated, because, it was said, the supplying of meat to the public is clothed with a public interest and advocates of the bill contend the legislation was necessary because of the alleged monopolistic practices of the so-called "Big Five" packers. Opponents of the bill declared it was an unwarranted, unconstitutional and dangerous precedent in government control and interference with private business likely to be extended to other lines of industry.

Numerous amendments were before the senate. Senator Sterling, republican, South Dakota, also had pending a substitute bill transferring powers of the proposed livestock commission to the federal trade commission.

ILL-WILL BETWEEN WHITES AND BLACKS ENDS IN LYNCHING

Two Negroes Taken from Jail and Shot by Mob of Masked Men

WARRENTON, N. C.—This town, the scene Sunday night of the lynching of two negroes by a mob of masked men and the source of wild rumors of clashes and impending clashes between armed blacks and whites, was restored to quiet Monday. A company of home guards, ordered out by Governor Morrison too late to prevent the double lynching, still was on duty and further trouble was not anticipated.

The lynching was the culmination of several days of ill-feeling between negroes and whites of Norlina, which reached a climax early Sunday in a pitched gun fight there, in which five white men and three negroes were wounded. Thirteen negroes were arrested and brought to jail here. At night the mob, numbering about 150, surrounded the jail, quickly overpowered the negro jailer, took Alfred Williams and Plummer Bullock, two of the prisoners, a mile outside of town and riddled them with bullets as they stood by the roadside.

Bullock and Williams were said to be leaders of the clash at Norlina which followed a dispute with a storekeeper over the purchase of ten cents worth of apples.

With the imprisonment of the thirteen negroes brought here from Norlina and the subsequent lynching of two of them the Warrenton negroes began to show signs of agitation. Five men who appeared to be leaders, have been arrested. All manner of firearms are said to have been found on them, including rifles, shotguns, and pistols.

SCHMIDT IS GUILTY HE SAYS IN COURT IN LIQUOR ACTION

Local Saloonkeeper Changes Plea When Arraigned Before Judge Landis

FEDERAL AGENT IN CANADA IS STILL SOUGHT IN COURT

Judge Landis Wants Fillian Extradited if Way Can be Found

Matt Schmidt, who operates a soft drink parlor and pool room at 122 South Second street, changed his plea from not guilty to guilty when arraigned before Judge Landis in United States court Monday morning charged with having in his possession intoxicating liquor. His place was raided last week, together with several local places.

Still After Fillian

Mention of the name of John E. Fillian, former prohibition agent in the Hurley district, now said to be a fugitive from justice in Canada, got a quick "rise" out of Judge Landis shortly after court opened Monday morning.

District Attorney Wolfe said that one of the Hurley cases could not be tried because Fillian, a witness for the government, could not be brought into court.

"Isn't there some way of getting this gentleman back from Canada?" inquired the court. "Have you tried the immigration act with a view to extraditing Mr. Fillian?"

Mr. Wolfe said he was working on the case, and if extradited Mr. Fillian would be a defendant in an action brought by the government.

Ohm Found Guilty

Inside of two hours after the trial of the case started, a jury, Monday morning found Ernest Ohm of Watertown guilty of having in his possession moonshine liquor, kimmel, wine and other liquors. Several large jugs of liquor and a basket filled with wine, which federal agents said they had found in Ohm's residence, were offered in evidence.

The raid was made during the week of the Watertown fair after Prohibition Agent Henning had seen drunken men come from the basement of the Ohm residence, he testified.

Agent Ihrig testified that Ohm had told him he had operated a still but had broken it up and thrown it into the river when he suspected he might get into trouble. Ohm formerly conducted a saloon, which he sold March 1, and on that date, it was testified, he moved his stock of liquor from the saloon to his residence.

Arcadia Man Guilty

John Wenzel of Arcadia entered a plea of guilty to the charge of having a still. H. J. Blanchard, Stephen Delack and John Mintal, all residing near Phillips, pleaded guilty to violations of the prohibition act.

Frank Haven of Madison, through his attorney, E. Elver, changed his plea to guilty.

John Marion of Richland Center is on trial this afternoon on a charge of having moonshine liquor in his possession.

KNETUCKY TOBACCO GROWERS WARNED BY NIGHT RIDING BAND

LEXINGTON, Ky.—Governor Morrow Monday planned an investigation of night riding in the Blue Grass tobacco belt on Kentucky, following the appearance of "riders" Saturday night for the frist time in years.

Fifteen farmers in Bath and Fleming contries were visited and warned that the selling of their tobacco crop or the planting of a new crop this year would result in the burning of their barns and destruction of other property.

The warnings followed the recent closing of the annual Burley tobacco markets, at which unusually low prices were offered farmers for their leaf.

CARNIVAL SPIRIT

IF we don't have snow and ice,
Never mind,
For some other way, we know,
We will find
To enjoy our sport and fun
(In the week that's just begun)
And to neighbors learn to grow
Twice as kind.

IF the weather seems to be
Just like Spring,
Let it be to you and me
Just the thing
Which will make our city's life
Free from selfishness and strife,
And from every heart in town,
Take the sting.

IF the winds blow hard and fast,
Let them send
Greetings gay, as you go past,
To each friend.
All your doubts about the rest,
With your own smile, you can test,
And good fellowship will last
To the end.

SNOW and ice or just bare ground,
May these days
Help each one of us to sound
Friendship's praise;
And no matter what the weather,
May we learn to work together
With the same zest we have found
In our plays.

WORLD PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED BY ALLIED REPRESENTATIVES AT CONFERENCE IN FRENCH CAPITAL

Reparations, German Disarmament, Turkish Treaty, Relief for Austria and the Russian Problem are Important Subjects to Come up for Consideration

PARIS.—Representatives of Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Japan gathered here Monday for a conference which seemed second in importance only to that preceding the signing of the treaty of Versailles. The principal figures were David Lloyd George, British prime minister, and Aristide Briand, who last week became president of the council of the French republic. About these, negotiations of the conference are expected to revolve during the coming week, and it was believed that when the conference has finally adjourned, the allied world will have settled questions which have long threatened serious complications, not only between ally and enemy countries, but between the governments which fought side by side against the central powers from 1914 to 1918.

In importance, these subjects ranked as follows:

Reparation, disarmament of Germany, enforcement or alteration of the treaty with Turkey, relief for Austria and policies to be pursued in dealing with Russia. All were questions on which the different nations were more or less divided.

More Time For Germany

Arrangements for the first session contemplated discussion of German disarmament by allied military experts who are understood to have agreed on a solution which grants a short period of grace to Germany in which to execute the engagements she made at the Spa conference. These agreements called for demobilization and disarmament of armed forces under the surveillance of an inter-allied control commission, and it was believed the conference would not be called upon to do more than to ratify the plan submitted by the experts.

The program for the day called for consideration of coal deliveries, the arrangement made between the allies and Germany at Spa expiring January 31.

This business, once out of the way, the conference would be free to devote all its time and energies to reparations.

May Summon Germans

German financial and economic experts may be summoned before the conference has continued long. The contention of Premier Lloyd George that the conference fix the amount of indemnity to be paid by Germany, which is opposed by Premier Briand, who holds that the amount of reparations to be paid the allies should be determined on the basis of what Germany can be compelled to pay, seemed to be of such a nature that expert German advice must be called upon for data. The discussion of the disarmament of German citizen guards and reduction of that nation's armed forces to the limit fixed by the Versailles treaty, also appeared to require the submission of information on the exact situation, especially in Bavaria and in Prussia.

The situation in Greece following the return of Constantine to Athens also seemed to have a direct bearing on the conference. It is no secret that France would not resist alteration of the treaty of Severes, by which Turkey was shorn of sovereignty over Constantinople, the Dardanelles, Smyrna and its Hinterland and large sections of Syria. There has been a rumored desire on the part of the allies to deal directly with the Turkish national government, that regime being dominant in Asia Minor at present, the Turkish Sultan's power being a mere shadow of authority.

Austria Asks Help

Appeals from the government of the Austrian republic, reflecting a critical situation in Vienna, were ready for submission to the allied representatives. Danger of an absolute governmental collapse in Austria, with its sequel of anarchy and bolshevism, is realized in every allied capital, and some means of granting aid to Austria, it is believed, must be devised before the conference closes.

Resumption of trade relations with Russia by the allies, which would entail a sort of conditional recognition of the soviet regime in Moscow, appeared to be a topic to be discussed seriously during the next week. In connection with this subject the note sent by President Wilson to Paul Hymans, president of the assembly of the league of nations, on Saturday, in which Mr. Wilson demanded that the allies assume a "hands off" attitude toward the Russian nation, appeared to be of prime importance.

The conference, which virtually was a meeting of the supreme council originally formed during the peace conference, began at 11:30 a. m. started with a discussion of German disarmament.

At 1 p. m. the council adjourned after having devoted nearly all the time of its first session to hearing Marshal Foch, Field Marshal Sir Henry Hughes Wilson of the British imperial staff, and General Nollet, head of the French military mission in Berlin on the disarmament question.

The conference was opened with a speech of welcome by Premier Briand. The afternoon session was set for four o'clock.

INDUSTRY'S WHEELS ARE BEGINNING TO SPIN

BY ALBERT APPLE

"WE are near the bottom of the business depression," says A. W. Douglas, vice president of the Simmons Hardware company.

A speedy revival of business is also predicted by A. C. Bedford, chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil company, in a speech at a private gathering of manufacturers.

Carolina cotton spinning mills have started up on an average of nearly full-time, including Woodside Mills, world's largest cotton mill under one roof. Similar pick-up taking place in New England. Conference of mill owners at Charlotte, predicts revival of entire cotton spinning industry by April 1.

With wheat 30 cents above last fall's low price, business in the northwest has picked up decidedly.

Grain loadings on western roads are heavy, deliveries to Chicago being largest for this time of year since 1917. The movement is so great that Northern Pacific and Great Northern have issued emergency orders against grain cars leaving their lines.

World's stocks of wheat on hand now 226,000,000 bushels, smallest in ten years. Compares with 323,000,000 bushels same time a year ago and 453,000,000 bushels in 1919. Supply and demand make the price. Looks better for farmers.

* * * *

General resumption of automobile industry in Detroit is looked for when Ford plant re-opens February 17.

Steady employment appears at hand in shoe industry. At Milwaukee national convention of shoe dealers, orders were placed for more than 1,000,000 pairs of shoes.

Stock market recovery is considered an anticipation of general business revival. May be a slump in February, but upward movement apparently has started. Average price of 50 leading railroad and industrial stocks is now 66, against 61 December 23, 1920, and 88 November 1, 1919, and 62 December 31, 1914.

* * * *

Period of cheap money at hand. Lower commodity prices mean less money required to do business, releasing funds. Money is a commodity and banks must sell their goods—complete.

Call loans in market outside the stock exchange recently have been made as low as four per cent. Highest 1920 rate was 25 per cent in February, and average for year was above eight. Time loans running as low as six per cent.

With money easier, big foreign financing is scheduled for next few months. That will help exports.

* * * *

Cotton is rallying steadily from early-December low prices. Recovery seems to have started on healthy basis. Two reasons for the advance: Revival of demand from New England mills, and the rise in British exchange which will permit heavier purchases of American cotton by England.

American cotton exports in December were 788,578 running bales. Domestic consumption is improving steadily.

CHICAGO, Ill.—A big black automobile believed to have held six persons when it plunged into a south branch of the Chicago river Saturday midnight, was the object sought by police grappling hooks Monday. SPARK FROM CHISEL OF WORKMEN CAUSES DISASTROUS BLAST

Gasoline Tank Car Explodes and Fire Spreads Through Surrounding District

TWENTY-FIVE ARE REPORTED KILLED BY THE EXPLOSION

Fire is Checked Before Much Damage is Done

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—At least twenty-five persons, most of them negroes, were killed, according to police estimates, and fifty or more injured by an explosion Monday of a tank car of gasoline. The explosion destroyed a row of frame dwellings at Front and Loony streets, shattered windows within a radius of fifteen blocks and shook the entire north end of the city.

The resultant fire, which for a time threatened to spread to a gas plant and several nearby manufacturing concerns, was checked before it gained headway.

Three men were cauking the tank car and police and fire department officials attributed the blast to a chance spark from a chisel which fell into the gasoline when another workman removed the cap from the top of the tank. Two of the workers were torn to bits, while the third escaped practically unscathed.

Twenty nearby frame houses were literally splintered by the force of the explosion and set afire while windows within a radius of fifteen blocks were broken.

Every ambulance in the city was rushed to the scene and volunteer rescue parties were formed to aid the police in removing the dead and injured. The fire was checked before it spread beyond the dwellings in the immediate vicinity.

SPEEDY TRIAL OF BADGER RATE CASE ASKED BY OLBRICH

Petitions U. S. Supreme Court to Bring Action to Trial Immediately

CONTEND STATE HAS RIGHT TO FIX ITS OWN RAIL RATE

Wisconsin Appeals from District Court Decision

MADISON, Wis. — So that the Wisconsin legislature may be given an opportunity to enact such railroad legislation as will be necessary under the Federal Transportation Act, M. B. Olbrich special counsel for the state, has asked the United States Supreme Court at Washington to bring the Wisconsin passenger fare cases to immediate trial. The state of Wisconsin takes the position that the Wisconsin legislature has the right to fix passenger fares in this state. The federal district courts have denied this holding that the Interstate Commerce Commission and Congress have complete control of this matter. From this decision an appeal has been taken by the Wisconsin authorities so as to have the case determined while the legislature was still in session. Mr. Olbrich, special counsel for the state, has asked that the case be advanced on the calendar and it will probably be argued on February 28.

"As a matter of common knowledge, some adjustment of the rate structures in intrastate passenger transportation from that established under different economic conditions should probably be made," says Mr. Olbrich in his appeal to the United States Supreme court," that, pending the final decision and disposition of the present appeal, the legislature of Wisconsin, which is now in session, and the legislatures of other states in which controversies are pending, many of which are likewise in session, will be wholly at a loss for guidance as to the extent of the power and authority with which they are respectively possessed, and without guidance to enable them to make such adjustment of their legislative policy with reference to the regulation of their internal commerce; that the legislature of Wisconsin will in the ordinary course of events, have adjourned long prior to a decision of the present action, if the hearing of the same be delayed to await its regular course and order on the docket."

The passenger fare matter will be one of the most important to come before the session of the legislature. If a favorable decision is obtained from the United States Supreme Court the Wisconsin legislature will probably enact some passenger fare law. Governor Blaine has recommended, however, that the railroad commission be given complete power to supervise all passenger fares in Wisconsin. The state of Wisconsin takes the position that it has the power to regulate all passenger fares within the state but does not have power to regulate interstate fares. If the contention of Wisconsin is upheld some action will be taken by the legislature to reduce the present passenger fare rates in Wisconsin.

MANUFACTURERS VOTE ALL SHOULD CUT MATERIAL COSTS

CHICAGO.—The conference of 200 manufacturers called to consider means of starting a national building boom as one method of reducing rents Saturday passed a resolution urging all manufacturers of building materials to reduce prices as much as possible.

The resolution carried by a slight majority. About half of the manufacturers refused to vote, holding that the passing of resolutions should be deferred until the national housing conference in Washington Jan. 27 and 28.

The resolution said the United States was short 2,000,000 homes. Reduction of the cost of building, it is said, would tend to relieve the housing condition and unemployment as well.

LOCAL GAS COMPANY SELLS MILLION OF NEW SECURITIES

The Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company, doing a general public business without competition, serving 48 communities in western Wisconsin and eastern Minnesota, has sold $1,000,000 worth of one-year 8 per cent gold notes to a syndicate. Public offerings will be made shortly. It furnishes a large amount of electric power under a 30-year contract with the Northern States Power company for distribution in St. Paul and Minneapolis. The proceeds of the notes will be used to retire $600,000 in 7 per cent notes maturing February 1, 1921, and meet the financial requirements of the company.

VALIDITY OF STATE MINIMUM WAGE ACT TESTED IN COURTS

State Files Suit Against Telephone Company for Violation of Law

MADISON, Wis.—A test of the constitutionality of the Wisconsin minimum wage law will be the result through the suit of the state against the Bloomer Telephone company, Bloomer, Wis., for refusal to pay $1,-500 forfeiture for violation of the minimum wage act. The attorney general, William J. Morgan, on complaint of the industrial commission served warrant again the company this morning which charges violation of the law in thirteen counts.

This is the first prosecution under the minimum wage law since its being put in operation.

The industrial commission found that the company was hiring girls on a wage scale lower than the law prescribes.

The minimum wage set by the commission fixes a minimum of 22 cents for adults, 18 cents for those of 17 years of age and 20 cents for those from 16 to 17 years of age.

John F. Baker, assistant attorney and O. H. Larrabee, district attorney of Chippewa county, will represent the state in the test.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLER AND FIREBUG REFUSES TO ANSWER CHARGE

DETROIT, Mich.—Franklin Lamb, former quartermaster at Fort Wayne, army post near here, stood mute when arraigned in federal court late Saturday charged with arson in connection with four recent fires that destroyed government property valued at $17,000 or more. He was held under $10,000 bonds.

The charge, filed by the United States marshal's staff, alleged that Lamb caused army post buildings to be fired in an attempt to destroy records which, it is alleged, showed a discrepancy in his accounts of $54,-700.

DEMAND SCALES ON FISH

MATTAPOISETT, Mass.— "Anti-denuded herring" is the slogan of Frank K. Sisson of this town, in his campaign to succeed Alonzo Kinney as herring inspector for the district. Out of town fisheries concerns have been stripping the scales from herring for use in making imitation pearls and then selling the herring to the people here. Mattapoisett citizens say they want their fish with the scales on.

Public Debate

QUESTIONS FOR MAYOR

To the Editor of the Tribune and Leader-Press.

Dear Sir: Now that Mayor Bentley has announced his candidacy for mayor for another two years, the voters will naturally ask what he stands for.

Among the things people on the street are asking is what is his attitude toward the prohibition law, the public gambling law, and what stand he now takes toward favoring "union labor?"

He is sworn to enforce all laws whether he takes sides with the "wets" against the "drys" or not, and that there have been violations of that law in this city is established by the fact that three saloonkeepers were found guilty in the federal court here a few days ago.

Public gambling is strictly against the law, and that law is being violated continually and very openly in the city daily.

Why are not these laws enforced or at least an effort made to enforce them? Are the people of La Crosse opposed to the enforcement of these laws, and therefore the Mayor too timid to enforce them, or is he opposed to the laws and allows them to be violated, where do we stand; this is a good time to try it out.

When "union labor" went out on that sympathetic strike last spring our mayor gave his entire approval and support to their cause, and urged them to stand by their demands until "Hell froze over," whatever that meant.

What about the merits of their complaint, what relation does the mayor hold regarding his duty to the rest of the city, the union suffered from that strike and so has the city, of what value was the mayor's advice and support in that cause?

These are public questions on which the voters have a right to ask the mayor tell where he stands through the public press; and we would also like to know if he is willing to state in public meeting from the platform where he stands on these issues and if he is willing to debate with any citizen on the merits of the issues.

Yours truly,

H. L. TAYLOR.

Made from the white meat of coconuts and fat-freed milk

Here is your chance to try, free, a sweet, delicate nut butter churned from dainty nut fats and fat-freed milk.

You will like it as well as the finest butter, if you are a butter user, and the price far better. If you are now using some other brand of margarin, the deliciousness of Troco Nut Butter will be a surprise and a revelation. It's the finally perfected brand of nut butter.

Troco Nut Butter has the true flavor of gilt-edged butter, put in by a famous butter expert. It has the same food value.

But where the price of butter makes it a costly luxury and an excessive tax on the average pocket-book, Troco costs about half as much. You can usually buy two pounds of Troco Nut Butter to every one of butter.

This puts an end to skimping and saving—you can afford to use all you want. This means a richer diet as well as enjoyment at the table.

Fats in abundance are necessary to good health. You and your family suffer if you skimp on this most necessary food.

Made by Hoffman

A. E. Hoffman, for 30 years a butter maker, famous for the unusual sweetness and delicacy of his butter, supervises the making of Troco Nut Butter. He puts in the same wonderful flavor.

He churns it from fat-freed milk, twice pasteurized. He flavors it with the same scientifically ripened milk which made his butter famous for delicate flavor.

He works in the new Troco plant, built exclusively for the production of nut margarin. This plant provides him with every possible facility, laboratory and mechanical, for his exacting work.

With flavor superb, food value the highest, and price right, Troco Nut Butter finally solves the butter problem. Accept the gift pound we offer, and prove that we can't describe the goodness of Troco Nut Butter.

"Lining Up"

EVIDENCES of factional "lining up" in the legislature are observed with misgivings. The legislative program is an important one. Regardless of the merits in detail of the various bills, they relate in the main to great state problems. Largely they are inescapable problems. Since they closely follow the governor's message, they may be taken as a whole as presented by him. He, more than any other individual, has a great stake in the success with which they are pressed for passage.

If every individual in the legislature considers each bill separately, and does what he is personally disposed to do, we may fairly expect that the bulk of this legislation will be passed in effective form. On the other hand, if the members fall into groups between which the program in its entirety is made the issue, there is grave danger that there will develop a factional fight in which merits of measures will be subordinated to the solidarity of the opposing organizations. Such a situation would play into the hands of extreme conservatives, and might deprive many good measures of the support of liberal-minded members who, going it alone, would be in sympathy with level-headed progress. Group voting means bad business for the state. It means boss control. The secret caucus and unit rule are enemies of good government.

In the closing paragraph of his able message, Governor Blaine appealed to the legislature to forget the factional differences of the campaign, and to "remember that we represent two and one-half millions of men, women and children."

What a splendid basis for carrying on the state's business! The influence of the governor might yet bring about its adoption, if exerted before it is too late.

A Critical Decision

SENATOR PENROSE is represented as telling President-elect Harding he must not appoint Hughes as secretary of state. Here is Harding's first test, and it will be watched with interest. Penrose gave the word in the Chicago convention which nominated Harding. Nobody can tell Hughes what he must or must not do. Obviously, if Penrose can not tell Harding not to nominate Hughes, and get away with it, he made a mistake in Chicago. Most people hope Penrose made a mistake.

Hoover is another man to whom political bosses who want to Warwick the administration object. He's another man who can not be depended upon to "stand hitched." Hoover is raising millions to save starving nations. In one speech Friday he took a million dollars from one man. But political bosses, too busy with political fences to bother about famishing millions, want a marionette cabinet. They propose to pull the strings.

Farmers Know Better

PRESIDENT HOWARD, of the American Farm Bureau Federation, advises farmers of the United States to make more use of horses and less of tractors. Instead of spending money for gasoline, he said at a meeting of the Illinois Agricultural association, "it would be well to use the grain at home. It will make a better market for the surplus if this plan is followed out."

Nothing more harmful to American agricultural interests ever has been suggested than this proposal to retreat from the machinery era to the old hand-power, horse-drawn age.

Between 1850 and 1910 the number of American farms increased fourfold; in the same time their value increased tenfold. The principal reason for the increase in the value of the farms lies, of course, in the vast increase of the American crops, which increase is due principally to the general use of the most powerful labor-saving machinery. Between 1850 and 1910 the value of agricultural machinery increased eightfold. As the price of agricultural machinery fell rapidly during the period it follows that the quantity of agricultural machinery used increased far more than eightfold. Production, per acre increased steadily as the use of machinery rose.

There could be no surer way of committing suicide than for American farmers to follow Howard's advice and discard tractors for horses. Logically it would follow that if horses should be used because they consume grain it were better to go still farther back and drive oxen, for a yoke of oxen can do less work per day than a team of horses, necessitating more oxen than horses and thus further increasing the need for grain. Oxen, too, would demand more man-power, which in turn would increase the demand for human food, thus giving "a better market for the surplus," as Howard suggests.

This carried still further would suggest the abandonment of all farm machinery, going back to the sickle, and the hand thresher, enormously increasing the demand for man-power and the accompanying demand for food.

If other American industries accepted Howard's advice and discarded machinery because machines don't wear shoes, nor clothes, nor eat wheat, where would this country be ten years hence?

It is true that tractors curtail grain consumption. But it is also true that they increase grain production. What is true of tractors is true of all farm machinery; they're all in the same boat, none of them eat grain. But because the American farmer now uses the tractor, the modern reaper, thresher, planter, and other farm machinery he is miles and miles ahead of his great-great-grandfather.

The League's Birthday

WAS the league of nations born on January 10, 1920, or six days later? That is a question destined to produce discussion for many years to come. Not that it matters much which way it finally is decided, if it ever is, for the main thing is that the league was born, and that it was born alive. The date is inconsequential.

Edwin L. James, American newspaper man in Paris at the time, wrote on January 16, 1920: "The league of nations is a reality. It began to function this morning at 10:30 o'clock, when the executive council opened its first meeting."

But that is much like saying a child was born the day it begins to crawl.

"On January 10, 1920, the league of nations descended from the realm of fancy and became a fact," writes Arthur Sweetser, of the American Peace Commission, in his new book, "The League of Nations at Work."

"On that day of January 10, 1920," Sweetser continues, "the ratifications of the Treaty of Versailles were exchanged at Paris; the treaty became effective, and the league of nations became part of the public law of the world."

One bill before the Wisconsin legislature that is of much importance to La Crosse is a proposition to increase the amount of state aid to county agricultural schools. The bill is receiving the support of the La Crosse delegation at Madison and with the support of other counties where agricultural schools are maintained stands a good show of passing the 1911 legislature. Under the present law the state contributes two-thirds of the cost of maintaining a county agricultural school providing the amount does not exceed $4,000. La Crosse county appropriated $13,000 at the last meeting of the county board to maintain the La Crosse county school.

A HORNETS' NEST

MARTHA McCULLOCH WILLIAMS

"You surely are a goose—a green goose at that!" Mrs. Barney said acidly to her, niece, Susanah. Susanah giggled wickedly and went on with the matter in hand—that of putting her hair in papers all over her head. Ash-blond hair, silk-fine, abundant, it had been cut short the night before while she was staying with Mary Peters.

Hence Aunt Barney's indictment after the strictest cross-examination had not shown her a reason for the change. "I just wanted to see myself—hair grows again, you know," was all that Susanah had said audibly. Her eyes however, twinkling like mad held quite another story.

"Humph! Your head looks exactly like a nigger's all wrapped for the week." Mrs. Barney sniffed as Susanah swathed the biggest silk bandanna Grandfather Main had left behind, deftly into a perfect turban. Again the girl giggled—but this time with a bow, and murmured: "Glad you think so," as she ran away upstairs. A little later she called from the front steps:

"Miss Betsy, I'm going visiting for—maybe a week. Don't you worry—it's a missionary effort." Then she ran down to where the Peters flivver waited, carrying a plump handbag and singing "Roll Jordan."

That afternoon Mrs. Clarice Dent explained tearfully to Em-Smith the maid she had just hired: "Don't you mind anything I may say. Im a—all ragged out. You heard about the robbery? No! I declare! Where do you come from? 'Down beyond.' I thought everybody knew. Burglars took all my jewels night before last—and my husband is so cruel—instead of offering a reward worth while and getting back my pearls and diamonds without any fuss, he would have in detectives—that's how I need you—they took away my good Felice—said it was inside work—when I'm certain she knows no more about the—the loss than I myself do."

"Ain't dat des too bad!" Em-Smith murmured, casting up her eyes, and shaking her head. It was a very well turbanned head with reassuring 'naps' breaking up the turban lines. Mighty trim in a blue cotton frock, folded kerchief, and low-heeled shoes, with a walnut-brown complexion, and horn-rimmed spectacles, she seemed to the distraught employer a special providence. "I sho'ly am sorry for you, Ma'am," she went on "I got two strings o' coral Old Misis give Mammy when I was a baby, and a jet necklace from the ten-cent sto'—I wear 'em Sundays, turn about—so I know how you must feel. Did you keep your things 'twenst your mattresses, or jes' under your head."

Mrs. Dent smiled hysterically—such naivete was refreshing. "I have a jewel box," she explained—"and a wallsafe to keep it in. "Here let me show you," touching the frame of a mirror close to her seat. "See! It opens with a spring—we thought nobody knew of it but Mr. Dent and myself. We—we must have been spied on—for the thieves took everything but my baby pins. They left the box open on my dressing table—my husband found it there when he came to wake me—he had been away—and I slept till all hours—so soundly I must have been drugged——"

"You right sho' dat Fillis woman didn't know?" Em-Smith interrupted nodding toward the mirror-door.

"Perfectly sure." Mrs. Dent answered eagerly. "Besides—she wasn't here—Iel her spend the evening with a friend in the village—she never disturbs me until I ring for her."

"Well, suh, all dat beats de Dutch, as Ole Granny uster say," Em-Smith ejaculated. "You must a-been mighty 'feared, stayin' all night by yourself in dis big house."

"The cook and butler were here—besides we had visitors — Captain Lowry and his sister, Madame Jevonne. Most distinguished both—that is the hardest part of it—of course, they left after insisting on being searched, trunks and everything. As if they could be suspected—but Arthur—my husband, said it was only right and proper."

"Well, Ma'am—I like the place—but I cain't stay on wid you, less'n you lemme sleep out—I got a friend lives jes' a little piece off." Em-Smith said after a ruminant ten seconds. "Som'p'n else moughta happen—you got so much fine wealthy plunder—my cracklers is the nos' I've got—so I don't mean to git any smears on it."

Mrs. Dent objected violently—but spent and nerve-wracked, gave in at last. Two hours later she was glad—Em-Smith almost magically had brought order out of chaos—had ministered to her personal needs in the most soothing fashion, withal deft. Then she had counseled: "You better sleep—a long nice nap," and vanished after tucking fluff of eiderdown about the tremulous figure on the couch by the window.

A butler, several shades lighter than herself, bade her tidy up the guest chambers, still in wild confusion. At the door he volunteered: "Ef dem 'tectives had a-asked me I could a-told 'em somp'n."

"What somp'n?" Em-Smith asked.

He wagged his head solemnly. "It'd a cut short thar job." He said orotundly. "So I'd a-got no thanks from nobody—madame hates her stepson like pizen—but she'd hate worse ter see him in stripes—and the Master! Lord! he'd a kilt me if I hadn't run."

"So you think that boy—" Em-Smith began looking away.

"I know—he was down in town the day before—never come for nothin' but money—and his papa was gone—Madame wouldn't talk to him even over the phone—"

"Better run along—I got no time for talk." Em-Smith said brusquely, setting to work like a whirlwind. But in spite of speed she took note of small things and great. And when she left the house around 11 o'clock she was smiling over things well done.

"Go straight to Dad, Curtis—you owe it to the name," she said a little later to a tall fellow who waited for her at the side gate. "Tell him his wife is only foolish, not wicked—yet. She let Lowry take her jewels to make him pay a reward that would cover her bridge debts to him and his sister—and leave something over for debts of his own. No—this isn't just a hunch. His bed has been laid on but not slept in—you can tell by the different feel of the linen. Then I found up the chimney-throat a roll of burnt paper—with the inside one half legible. A note signed with her name. There was a long distance call while she slept—I wouldn't let the butler wake her—answered it myself. It wasn't Lowry—his valet instead. My nigger talk so reassured him he gave a message—it was "Good news! Felice returns tomorrow, in triumph."

"Not if I can help it—she must have known." Curtis Dent interrupted.

"Of course—but you'll be foolish to interrupt—don't you see, she is coming to reclaim the treasure—it's hidden somewhere about—they never dared take it away. Let her come—call off the detectives—I'm to stay on a week, maybe—Madame likes my touch. And so I'll have a chance to be in at the death—"

"You shan't—I can't stand it—having you there amongst servants," Curtis broke in, slipping his arms around her.

"You'll have to—goosey," she whispered back. "Unless we can turn surprise to proof—actual they will end by putting the robbery on you."

"That is why you—" Curtis began, holding her tighter. Trembling a little, she freed herself and ran from him, happy and miserable in the same breath.

Three nights later she waited patiently outside the back gate until moondown and chicken crow marked the small hours. Curtis kept her company—low-crouched they saw Felice slip out, run down the patch, dart into the woods, reappear clasping to her a huge hornet's nest. She whistled shrill but low, an auto answered her, and she began running to the highway; but Curtis and Em-Smith were at her heels. A headlight flashed intermittently. Lowry himself was in wait. Before the woman reached him Curtis caught her fast. Em-Smith snatched away the hornet's nest, and down upon the earth tumbled diamonds, pearls and rubies.

Irrigation by American Ancients

Indisputable evidences of a civilization of a high type have been discovered in the Panhandle region of Texas, western Oklahoma and southwestern Kansas by an expedition under the auspices of the Oklahoma Historical Society. Buried villages have been unearthed and many notable discoveries have been made but the most interesting is the remainer of the prehistoric irrigation ditches or canals. These certainly antedate the coming of the white man and display a high order of engineering. The work is of the most substantial character and will be given a minute examination at a later period.

"BREAD 'N' JELLY"

Being a Tale of Spuds, Whitey, and a Slice of Bread 'n' Jelly.

With a slice of bread and jelly in one hand and another slice of bread spread with peanut butter, in the other, Spuds, or Richard, Barthelmew stepped carefully down the stairs of his back porch. The hand that held the peanut-buttered bread had just gone to his mouth, when, a short distance up the alley, walking slowly along, Spuds spied his old crony, Whitey Clifford. Whitey was in deep thought, apparently, for his head was bent and he did not see Spuds.

"H-e-e-y, Whitey!" Spuds had delayed his bite into the bread and peanut butter long enough to emit this call.

Whitey looked up. "Hi, Spuds! "What ya got?" Whitey had sharp eyes for a lad of his size, so it is little wonder that he detected food of some sort in Spuds' hands, even though he was about a quarter of a block distant.

"Bread 'n' peanut butter," called Spuds, walking toward the gate in the backyard. At the mention of bread and peanut butter Whitey began to dog-trot up to the Barthelmew gate. Bread and peanut butter always did interest him.

Whitey arrived at the gate, where Spuds was waiting.

"What ya say ya got, Spuds?" Whitey inquired, climbing up on the cross board of the gate and swinging. It was Whitey's idea that perhaps if he showed sufficient interest in what Spuds had Spuds would offer him some.

"Peanut butter 'n' bread, I told ya once—can't you see, dummy?" Spuds was plainly a little out of sorts for some reason or other.

"A-w-w," replied Whitey. Spuds could not see the point, thought he. Whitey continued to swing on the gate, and the squeak of the rusty hinges was the only thing to break the silence for the next few moments. Spuds continued to munch the bread and peanut butter and Whitey looked on with hungry eyes.

[Interesting developments are made in the second — tomorrow's — installment of this story. Whitey allows himself to become angry about something—but that's telling. Read it tomorrow.]

DOG STORIES

The day it happened mother was home alone. The neighborhood, for the past month, had been bothered considerably by a band of wanderers encamped nearby.

Mother was in the kitchen ironing. There came a rap at the door. She answered. To her surprise and fright, there stood a burly, mean-looking man. Mother was so surprised, she said nothing, and the man did not speak, either. He just thrust his arm inside the door and pushed it open, shoving mother to one side. He walked thru the kitchen into the pantry.

Dog Goes for Intruder

Our pet dog, a Boston bull, that had been sleeping under the kitchen table, was awakened. He saw something was wrong, and with a low growl Boston made a dash for the stranger, grabbing the man's leg in his strong jaws. The man yelled and tried to kick Boston off, but old Boss held tight.

By this time some carpenters working near by, attracted by mother's screams, came running to her assistance.

The man, who was later identified as a member of the band of rovers, was turned over to the police and punished.—K. P. T.

SCHOOL IS PRESENTED VALUABLE OLD PAPERS

Students of the Mount Vernon, N. Y., high school were extremely fortunate in being presented recently with bound volumes of the famous and now discontinued publication, "Harper's Weekly," dated 1871-1876, by a friend of the school, Major Van Cott. These issues of "Harper's Weekly," which was one of the greatest weekly publications of the last half of the nineteenth century, are of no little value in that they contain pictures of the Franco-German war, the Chicago fire of 1871, and the great Centennial Exposition of 1876.

LA CROSSE HIGH SCHOOL OFFERS VARIED COURSES

Opportunities Offered One for Any Branch of Work for Future

THE COMMERCIAL COURSE

Pupils intending to enter High school should not fail to consider the opportunities offered in the Commercial course.

This course is mainly for students who intend to enter a business or become stenographers, bookkeepers or private secretaries. It includes bookkeeping, typewriting, shorthand, commercial law and salesmanship.

The bookkeeping courses teach penmanship and the principles of keeping books. From this study a person learns the methods of conducting a business. It is a two-period subject and may be taken for either one semester or four semesters. Many students who have graduated from high school have made practical use of the knowledge gained in bookkeeping. It is a very interesting subject and is very popular with all who have taken it.

Typewriting and shorthand are also interesting courses which are open only to Juniors. There is always a big demand for stenographers and typists and any high school graduate can get a position if he has done good work.

Commercial law, a one-semester course which is open to seniors, includes the laws and rules of business. Salesmanship, also is open only to upper classmen.

PREMIUMS AWARDED TO BEST STUDENTS

Cup and Medals to be Given

Are you ambitious? If you are why not try for the rewards which have been offered for good scholarship? Mr. Collinge has offered a beautiful silver cup upon which the names of all special honor roll students are to be engraved. To get his name on the special honor roll and on the cup a student must have a record of ninety per cent or more in all four subjects for at least one quarter. The first student to hold a place on the special honor roll throughout his high school course will receive the cup as a reward.

There is also another cup offered by a group of faculty members to the class which has the best record for a semester's work. Here is a good chance for the new Freshman class to show what they're made of.

In addition to the cups Mr. Collinge has offered two medals, one for the boy and the other for the girl who has the best scholastic record for the year. Surely, any of these rewards are worth trying for. Will any of them go to the Freshman class?

GIRLS UNITED FOR NEAR EAST RELIEF

In response to a stirring appeal made by Mrs. Linker, the Girls' Reserves have collected over three hundred pounds of foodstuffs to be sent to the starving people of the Near East and Central Europe.

The ladies of the Salzer Memorial are packing the food, as their experience and organization have made them especially efficient in this work. The Girl Scouts, who cleared about ten dollars at the candy sale before the game on Jan. 14, are planning to apply this amount toward postage required to send these packages. The food is packed in eleven pound packages which require a dollar postage each.

In order to raise the remainder of the necessary postage, an admission fee of ten cents was charged for the game between the high school Girls' first team and the Girls' Reserve team played on Friday p. m. Jan. 21 in the high school gym.

THE JUNIOR PROM

The Juniors decided in their meeting last Wednesday to hold the usual Junior Prom Jan. 28. The committees in charge of preparations are: Boys—F. Morgan (chairman), N. Holley, H. Coulam, F. Hankerson. Girls—E. Leide (chairman), M. White, M. Beth, E. Gerling and V. Clark.

COMMENCEMENT AND BACCALAUREATE

The program of the speeches for commencement has been announced as follows:

Emma Hanson, Salutatorian—Part Time Employment for Commercial students.

Bernice Groth—Restriction of Immigration.

Samuel Kaaz—American Police Departments.

Eric Ravndal—The Consular Service and the Opportunities It Offers.

William Voss—Co-operative Marketing. (Valedictorian.)

The Baccalaureate address which is to be given Sunday, January 23, will be delivered by Rev. C. C. Rowlison.

MANUAL TRAINING COURSE

If a boy has had any interest or ability in the manual training of the graded school, he should plan to take up the manual training course in high school. There are many advantages derived from this course that could be obtained only from years of experience in the shops. The four semesters of work in this course are required in order to get any credit and should be taken up in the following order: Freshman drawing, cabinet making, mechanical drawing, and pattern making. For upper class work there are several elective subjects and may be taken in any order, but it is advisable to follow this outline: Foundry, forging, machine shops 1 and 2, auto mechanics 1 and 2, machine drawing and architectural drawing. One credit is given for each semester's work.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE COURSE

Any girl interested in cooking or sewing in general, as well as those interested in domestic science teaching, millinery work, or dietetics, would be wise to begin the domestic science course at high school in their freshman year.

This course includes Cooking 1 and 2, Sewing 1, 2, and 3, and Millinery 1 and 2. In order to get credit for this work, one must take both Sewing 1 and 2 and Cooking 1 and 2, Sewing 3 and Millinery are elective, but are open only to upper classmen.

Sewing 1 and Cooking 1 are open to freshmen, but Sewing 1 should be taken first because after taking sewing one is better prepared to go on with cooking. Sewing 1 includes plain sewing, while Sewing 2 includes the making of dresses. Sewing 3 takes up the making of fancy dresses.

PICTURE FUND STARTED

The Freshmen are collecting their contributions to the Picture Fund, which they expect soon to deposit with Mr. Mack, our banker, that the principal may accumulate interest. Nothing has as yet been heard of a fund being started by any other class. Upper classmen, get busy!

We may add that the Freshmen are an unusual class. The honor and special honor roll of the last quarter has on it more Freshmen than any other classmen. Among the candidates appear several honor students. In the history of our school this class is the first to attend, in a body, a football game, and the first to have class cheer leaders and a class historian. Now they are the first to start the Picture Fund. We shall follow the record of this class with interest and believe it is fitting that such a class should have a historian.

EVEN SPARTA SEES VISIONS OF SPRING; FIRST ROBIN SIGHTED

Sparta Residents in Southern California Surprise Home Town Pastor

SPARTA, Wis.—The first robin of the season was seen in Sparta on January 10 by Dr. Vernon W. Stiles. The robin was skipping around in the yard at the Congregational church on North Water street. However, the doctor must have been a little skeptical about the bird's presence being a sure sign of an early spring, for that very afternoon, he, in company with his wife and daughter, departed for California, where they expect to sojourn for two or three months.

A company of Sparta people, who are spending the winter in southern California, planned a pleasant surprise for Rev. F. W. Straw, a former pastor of the Methodist church in Sparta, who is now preaching in a Congregational church in Lemon Grove, a suburb ten miles east of San Diego. The Spartans gathered at a meeting place, and three autos conveyed them to the church and they marched in, in a body to attend the service and hear Mr. Straw. After the service they went to the parsonage with their well filled baskets, and with the aid of Mrs. Straw and daughter, Ruth, soon had a sumptuous repast ready. Mrs. Prill of Sparta was in charge and among the other Spartans to enjoy this reunion were Mr. and Mrs. Ward B. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Benedict, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Teall, Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Prill, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Jones, Mr. and Mrs. John Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Davis, Mrs. A. U. Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lake, Mrs. W. F. Meyer and several young people. It was a most happy occasion and long to be remembered by all present.

Dr. William W. Johnson, superintendent of the division of the American Sunday School Union, with headquarters at Chicago, has notified Rev. D. J. McTavish that he may have the state Sunday school missionary work, in place of the district, and he has decided to accept the offer. Mr. McTavish has been on this district for the past nine years. Rev. J. D. Crandall of Black River Falls has been given the district work and will begin his new duties the first of February. Mr. McTavish has not decided as yet where he will establish his headquarters and in view of that fact, the family will remain here for the present.

MERCHANT HELD FOR ARSON

QUINCY, Ill.—Davis Harris, proprietor of a ready-to-wear store, was arrested on a charge of arson Saturday. His establishment was burned out partially Thursday. He reported that he carried $4,000 insurance, but it transpired he had $20,000. An investigation disclosed rags saturated with oil and an electric fan to blow the flames on a stairway.

MORE THAN 90,000 PLACED IN JOBS BY EMPLOYMENT OFFICE

Falling off from Previous Year Negligible, Reports Indicate

MADISON.—During 1920 the eleven free employment offices conducted by the Industrial commission made 91,570 placements as compared with 92,908 in 1919. Of the persons placed 76,015 were men and 15,560 women. No person is counted as placed, unless the employer to whom he was referred reports that he has been hired. Approximately 40 percent of the total placements were in Milwaukee and 60 per cent in the 10 offices in the smaller cities.

During December 1920, the employment offices placed a total of 4,267 persons as compared with 5,557 in December 1919. This falling off reflects the change in industrial conditions. Increases over a year ago occurred in Ashland, Green Bay, Madison, Oshkosh, and Rhinelander. The bulk of the persons placed were unskilled workmen, with a considerable falling off in the number of the placements in skilled and clerical help. There is a marked increase, on the other hand, in the number of women domestics placed. Of the total of 1,497 placements of women during this month no less than 1,208 were domestics.

A LETTER RECEIVED FROM AN OLD LA CROSSE BOY.

Jan. 9, 1921.

I happened on a La Crosse newspapor the other day and saw one of your advertisements and it brought to my mind the time I spent in school with you and in thinking back remember some of the good times had there.

As you see by the letterhead I am with the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company and am Manager of the Hampton, Iowa, Exchange. Have found it to be a very good corporation to work for and like this kind of work.

I would appreciate it very much if you could spare me one of your catalogues as I would like to look it over.

Why do our old students write to and remember the "WBU"? Because it has done something for them and is willing to do more.

COLDS RELIEVED BY TURPO

The Turpentine Ointment That Gives Immediate Relief in All Cold Troubles and Congestion. Mothers Use it to Prevent Development of Children's Colds.

For several winters a large number of people, especially mothers of small children, have prevented the serious effects from neglected colds by using Turpo—the new Turpentine Ointment which, applied externally, drives a cold away overnight, relieves congestion of all kinds, and has valuable antiseptic properties.

There is nothing mysterious or secret about Turpo—it is a scientific combination of distilled Turpentine, Camphor and Menthol, in a salve or ointment which, being readily absorbed through the skin, carries the recognized and beneficial effects of these medicines to the root of the trouble. Turpo, applied up the nostrils at the first sign of a cold, relieves congestion and headache, clears the air passages, checking the cold at the very root, and prevents its developing into more serious trouble.

Pneumonia and influenza may develop from a neglected cold—especially in children—and careful mothers are now using Turpo as a standard household application, to be used at the first sign of "sniffles" in the child. For severe colds, Turpo rubbed on the throat and chest gets under the skin, clearing up the congestion, without blistering the skin or staining the clothing.

Turpo is also of value to give relief in catarrh, hacking cough, sore throat, and as an antiseptic application for cuts, wounds and burns. Ask your doctor or druggist about Turpo—they will confirm that it is a good, honest remedy.

Sold in white opal jars with the orange and black label, 30c and 60c. Your money will be cheerfully refunded if you are not entirely satisfied.

Will he propose to her tonight?

The fortunate girl who knows that he will, if she wants him to, may be a dazzling blonde or a brilliant brunette. But her serene consciousness of power comes from knowledge that her beauty is based on radiant freshness of skin which fears neither evening light nor the pitiless glare of noon.

The secret of such a complexion is cosmetic cleanliness such as was practiced by Cleopatra. A healthy skin, smooth and alluring, is within the reach of every woman.

These envied skins are developed this way

Countless women, every day, use this right method to a healthfully beautiful complexion.

First, they clean the skin. That is essential. And the only possible way is with soap.

Skins clog rapidly with oil, perspiration and dirt. Unless these secretions are washed off, the tiny pores enlarge. The complexion becomes coarse. Blackheads and blotches may develop.

Whatever else you do, start with a clean skin, free from foreign matter. Whatever you add—powder, a touch of rouge—remove it before you sleep. If your skin is very dry, use cold cream both before and after washing.

Not ordinary soap

But this doesn't mean washing with ordinary soap, irritating, drying. This has led many women to quit soap.

Use a balmy soap, a soothing soap, a blend of palm and olive oils. The lather must enter the skin, so it should be bland and creamy.

This means Palmolive soap—the finest facial soap in the world. Based on oils which have for ages held supreme place as cosmetics.

The lather soothes and cleanses. It leaves the skin in soft, clean, fresh condition.

Price only 10 cents

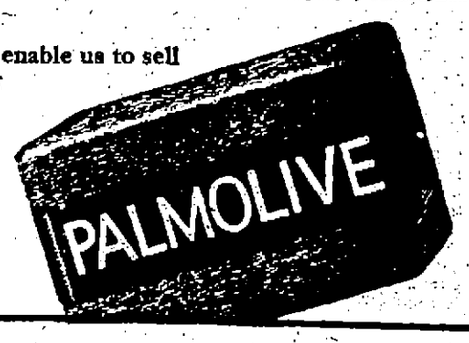

Many women think that costlier soaps must be better. But Palmolive is the utmost in a skin soap. There is nothing better for this purpose than palm and olive oils, scientifically combined. There are no soap ingredients more costly.

We make Palmolive for the millions. It is not for the few, but for all. That's why it costs so little.

19 EGGS A DAY FROM 23 HENS, IN WINTER

Mr. Dunl's Hens Increased Every Day. Plan is Easily Tried

"We have 28 chickens and hadn't had an egg all winter. In five days after feeding Don Sung, we got 4 to 6 eggs a day; in three weeks, we were getting 10 to 12 a day; in five weeks we got 15 eggs a day."—John Dunl, Box 102, Cherry Valley, Pa.

Mr. Dunl started giving Don Sung in January, in zero weather. He now keeps his hens busy in winter when hens usually loaf. A trial costs nothing. Here's our offer:

Give your hens Don Sung and watch results for one month. If you don't find that it pays for itself and pays you a good profit besides, simply tell us and your money will be cheerfully refunded.

Don Sung (Chinese for egg-laying) is a scientific tonic and conditioner. It is easily given in the feed. Improves the hen's health and makes her stronger and more active. It tones up the egg-laying organs, and gets the eggs, no matter how cold or wet the weather.

Don Sung can be obtained promptly from your druggist or poultry remedy dealer, or send $1.04 (includes war tax) for a package by mail prepaid. Burrell-Dwiggr Co., 219 Columbia Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

MICHAEL P. FINNERTY VETERAN MILWAUKEE CONDUCTOR, IS DEAD

Tomah Resident Who Passed Away in Chicago Was Well Known in Sparta

SPARTA, Wis.—Word has been received here of the death of Michael P. Finnerty, which took place in a hospital in Chicago, where he was taken for an operation. Mr. Finnerty was an old resident of Tomah, having been a conductor on the Wisconsin Valley division of the Milwaukee railroad, for the past 35 years. His widow, one daughter, Miss Genevieve, and three sons survive.

The marriage of Lester Eischel and Miss Emma Hirsch, both of the town of Angelo, took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Hirsch, on Saturday evening. The Rev. H. W. Schmeling, pastor of the Lutheran church in Sparta, was the officiating clergyman. The couple were attended by Willie Hirsch and Gertrude Miller. After the ceremony, a wedding supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Eischel will make their home on the Nicol farm in Angelo.

Club Meetings

The Odds and Ends club met Tuesday with Mrs. A. M. Barney. The S. S. C. B. club were entertained at the home of Mrs. W. T. Sarles. The Travel club will meet next Tuesday with Mrs. Lou Philips, on North Water street.

Mrs. T. P. Abel entertained thirty friends at her home Thursday afternoon. Mr. Robert Merrill was hostess to a small company of friends at her home Thursday afternoon.

Supper will be served by the Ladies' Aid society in the M. E. church, Tuesday evening, beginning at 5:30 o'clock.

Wednesday evening the neighbors of West Beaver Creek, gathered at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Hoveland, and gave them an old fashioned surprise party. The affair was in the nature of a house warming, as the Hovelands have recently remodeled their farm place into a fine modern home. The guests took well filled baskets and a fine picnic supper was enjoyed.

Knights Templar Conclave

The Knights Templar commandery held a conclave at the Masonic temple Friday afternoon for special work. At 6:30 o'clock, all joined in a banquet at Hotel Lewis. Covers were laid for 52. Guests were present from Tomah, Wyeville, Bangor, Necedah and Madison.

The fourth number in the musical entertainment course, put on by the Sparta High school, was given Thursday evening in the Congregational church by the Festival Orchestra company of Chicago. The program was well carried out and the young women proved themselves royal entertainers. Despite the inclement weather and the bad condition of the streets the church was filled to its capacity. The entertainment course has been well patronized, as Spartans are glad for an opportunity to hear good music.

The Congregational club will have a supper in the church parlors, Tuesday evening. S. G. Ruegg of Menasha will be the speaker of the evening. His topic is "From Pottsdam to Jerusalem." There will be a discussion of church school needs.

Sunday was Young People's day in the Congregational church. There was a special service in the afternoon at 3 o'clock, at which time Rev. Edgar F. Farrill of Milwaukee spoke on the subject of an "Efficient Christian Endeavor Society." A luncheon supper was served at 5 o'clock.

RICHARDSON STARTS VIGOROUS DRIVE ON DRY LAW VIOLATORS

Special Squads to Go Out After Saloons, Breweries and Wholesalers

CHICAGO, Ill.—A renewed and vigorous drive on the illicit liquor traffic in the Chicago territory was promised Monday by Frank D. Richardson, supervising prohibition agent for the central states, upon his return from Washington where he conferred with Prohibition Commissioner J. F. Kramer.

Colonel L. G. McNutt, head of the government's anti-narcotic activities, will come to Chicago to take charge of a special detail and assist in the new mopping up campaign. Two squads will be formed to collect evidence and check up on breweries and whiskey dealers under suspicion. The anti-drug and prohibition enforcement bureaus will be consolidated for the new drive, which is expected to reach even into the offices of government supervisors in the local districts—Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan.

A reorganization of the withdrawal permit section of the division offices will be one of the first steps in the new movement, according to Mr. Richardson. Close inspection of permits, he stated, is expected to reveal sources and channels of unlawfully distributed liquor supplies. Hundreds of arrests are looked for within the next few days. Breweries, liquor wholesalers and saloonmen will receive the major attention of the new squads, leaving the illegal home brewer for later consideration.

UNION MEN SEEK LEADERS WHO'LL BACK UP HARDING

CHICAGO, Ill.—A new national labor movement, designed to inaugurate as cordial relations between labor chiefs and the Harding administrations as those existing between the Gompers regime and President Wilson, was organized at a meeting of a large number of veteran workingmen in the Hotel La Salle Sunday afternoon.

The new organization will be called the "American League of Union Workingmen." With the Chicago organization as a nucleus, a carefully prepared plan of propaganda will be carried to every part of the country, it was announced.

The new union is sponsored by members of the A. F. of L., and will include all crafts.

A resolution which was passed sharply criticized present leaders of the American labor movement.

ONE DOLLAR ONLY LOOT OF BANDITS ON C. & A. TRAIN

CHICAGO, Ill.—The Chicago & Alton train from Kansas City to Chicago was held up between Pleasant Hill and Louisiana, Mo., early Monday, according to word reaching the general offices of the road here. The only proceeds of the robbery was $1, contributed by the fireman to a man who climbed aboard the locomotive, it was said.

Locked vestibule doors kept the robbers from getting into the sleeping cars and coaches and protected the passengers from molestation.

The engine crew reported they stopped the train because the robbers flagged them.

BOY ON BIKE STRUCK BY AUTO, LOSES CASE; NO LIGHT ON WHEEL

Raphael Gahan was riding his bicycle near the alley adjoining the Y. M. C. A. on Main street, on the night of December 6, last, when he was struck by an automobile driven by H. C. Huebner. The bike was broken and Raphael was hurt, he declares. Raphael, through L. L. Gahan, retained Lucien Reid to bring suit against Huebner. Huebner retained Oscar Swennes to defend him. The case was heard before Judge Hunt Monday. Huebner was charged with reckless driving. After a few witnesses were heard, Mr. Swennes asked dismissal of the case on the grounds that there was no evidence that Huebner was guilty of reckless driving or that he was negligent but that there was evidence that there was contributary negligence on the part of Raphael and that he was violating a city ordinance in riding a bicycle without a light on it. The court upheld Swennes' contentions and dismissed the case.

MINNESOTA GROWERS ENTER EXHIBITS IN CORN, GRAIN SHOW

Twenty-one Farmers Displaying Fifty-one Samples of Crops, Mostly Pure Bred Corn

MINNESOTA is well represented at the Pure-Bred Grain and Forage show at La Crosse, which is now being judged and which will be open to the public January 26-29 inclusive. The spectacular winter carnival and celebration, the plans for which are being completed, will be in full swing at the same time.

The Minnesota exhibitors, who number twenty-one, are showing fifty-one samples consisting largely of fine selections of the Minnesota pure bred varieties of corn. These samples are demonstrations of the wonderful progress made in the last few years in corn breeding and development for the northern region. Some of these samples were displayed at the great International Hay and Grain show of Chicago.

The La Crosse show is the largest state grain and forage show ever held in the northern region. The most spectacular feature is the wonderful display of sheaves of grain, forage and fiber crops. The favorable season and the great interest taken in putting up these exhibits have resulted in filling these classes to overflowing. January 27 and 28 are the big days at the show; January 27 being the day of the great carnival parade, and on January 28 will be held the all day session of farmers' meetings.

BUSKIN CLUB IS PLANNING A PLAY AT NORMAL SCHOOL

Dramatic Organization is Working Under the Direction of D. O. Coate

The Buskin club, a dramatic organization of the La Crosse Normal school, has begun work on a play which is to be presented in the Normal auditorium in the near future. This club is one of the oldest in the school and has for its advisor, Mr. D. O. Coate, who is also the founder of the club.

The membership of the club is limited, and new members are admitted only after having proven themselves worthy of membership by a demonstration of dramatic ability at a try-out held at the beginning of the school year. This year 18 new members were admitted, which, with the seven old members, brings the total to 25.

The object of the club is to make a study of dramas and plays. Meetings are held every two weeks, and a play is staged at each meeting in order to give the members opportunity to become proficient in dramatic interpretation. The club also aims to put on one large play for the general public each semester.

The play that has been chosen for presentation this semester is "Standish of Standish," by Anne Russell Marble. This is a Pilgrim play and is, therefore, thoroughly in harmony with the tercentenary celebration of the Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers which are so numerous all over the country this year. The play is a fine interpretation of a bit of the early colonist's life, in which Miles Standish is the outstanding character, and of course, Priscilla and John Alden. The play is being coached by Mr. Coate and Miss Nation, and will be presented about February 11.

WORLD SKI EXPERTS TO PARTICIPATE IN NEW YORK CONTEST

LAKE PLACID, N. Y.—An international ski jumping contest, in which several of the leading ski experts of Europe have been invited to compete, will take place here on February 21 under the anspices of the Lake Placid club.

Among the Swiss competitors now practicing on the club slide are Anthony A. Maurer and Charles E. Valesha.

Maurer is the winner of Engadine international gold cup for ski jumping and ski running in 1920. This trophy is symbolic of the world's ski championship.

Valesha was the winner of the international ski jumping contest at Klosters, Switzerland, in 1915, when he cleared 203 feet.

CAPTAIN STREETER DEAD

CHICAGO.—Captain George Wellington Streeter, chief figure in one of the most picturesque legal struggles ever enacted in Chicago, is dead. Captain Streeter was claimant to the title for a large section of the near North Side, along Lake Michigan and commonly known as Streeterville.

His death occurred Saturday night on a little houseboat where he made his home, it became known Monday.

NIMROD SEES FIRST ROBIN ROUNDING UP BREAKFAST AT TOMAH

And Now Everybody Rests Easier With the "First Harbinger of Spring" Discovered

TOMAH, Wis.—The Chamber of Commerce was instrumental in the organization of the Tomah Building and Loan association of seventy men and women. The object of the organization is to aid people of the community in building and owning their own homes. The association is the outgrowth of the serious lack of rents and homes in this city. Organized effort is the only possible solution of this problem, the greatest one which has confronted the community in many years.

Miss Hazel Sawyer of Waukon, Ia., Monroe county Red Cross nurse, has arrived at Sparta, her headquarters, and begins her work this week. The office of Miss Sawyer is in the poor commissioner's rooms at the county court house.

The only bona fide 1921 robin was seen near this city by Mr. William Houn, while hunting north of Tomah on January 20. The tiny harbinger of spring was as lively as a cricket and apparently perfectly satisfied with himself and his surroundings.

Attorney W. R. McCaul of Tomah was appointed Monroe county humane officer by State Officer A. E. Fredrick. Dr. R. A. Garman was named Tomah officer. Tomah has for years had a humane society. This is the first affiliation with any other organization.

Jesse L. Lasky Presents
"The Sins of St. Anthony"
With BRYANT WASHBURN

In lovely woman's eyes he had seven deadly sins:

1. He lacked pep and he couldn't dance.
2. His wildest revel was a stroll in the park.
3. He wore square-toed gaiters and a celluloid collar.
4. His clothes shone instead of his shoes.
5. At a pink tea he was a blue funk.
6. He never pressed his trousers or a lady's hand.
7. All he knew of life he saw through his microscope.

So his sweetheart turned him down, and to cure his "sins" he turned to the chorus of "The Rajah's Pet Wife." Come and laugh till you're weak at Anthony's joyous "conversion."

COMEDY DRAMA—STRAND

When "Alma, Where Do You Live?" is presented at the Strand theater today, the patrons of that house will witness a picturization of one of Broadway's most successful musical comedies. The film version stars Ruth McTammany, who will portray the role of Alma, originally made famous by Kitty Gordon, and George Larkin, well known serial star. The charm of the stage play has been retained in the picture play and full advantage has been taken of the opportunity to provide beautiful and artistic settings as a background for the fast moving action. The story is a delightful comedy drama, interpreted by a well known cast of stage and screen players. The plot revolves around the love of George, an artist, and Alma, premiere dancer of a well known Broadway musical show. The producers of the film version show many scenes of interest in and around the theater and not one of the least important scenes is that showing a large chorus of girls interpreting an Egyptian dance.

BRYANT WASHBURN—MAJESTIC

Fashion's latest decree in smart feminine attire will be seen in the musical screen comedy, "The Sins of St. Anthony," which will be the attraction at the Majestic for three days commencing today. Bryant Washburn, the featured player, has the role of a slovenly, bashful young scientist who is turned down by his fair charmer on account of lack of pep. In a wild attempt to prove himself a "live wire," he makes the acquaintance of the giddy show girls in the current musical comedy success and his life thereafter is just girls, girls, girls. Until he meets the little dancer of the entourage, who not only makes a snappy, up-to-date youth out of him but wins his heart as well. Other features of the program are a Pollard comedy, "When the Wind Blows," Fox News and vaudeville—Stutz and Delmar in an up to the minute comedy singing, talking and dancing act, and Lamey and Pearson in a smart dialogue and snappy songs.

WILLIAM RUSSELL—RIVIERA

Heralded as the best feature in which William Russell has starred, "The Man Who Dared," a new William Fox production with the story laid in the California redwoods, is coming to the Riviera theater today. William Russell has the role of Big Jim O'Kane, boss of a lumberjack camp. The story tells what happened to Big Jim and the girl he loved when he "got in wrong" with the sheriff. For the sheriff happened to be in love with the girl, too, and he was not exactly all that a sheriff should be. The film is notable for the beauty of its setting. Trees grow 200 feet high in the Redwoods, and to walk the forest paths is like walking in the aisles of great cathedrals.

BERT LYTELL—CASINO

Bert Lytell in "The Price of Redemption" is the feature at the Casino today. The picture is from the famous novel, "The Temple of Dawn," by L. A. R. Wylie. The story of the play in which Bert Lytell enacts the leading role is that of a young Englishman in the dark heart of India, who becomes famous for a deed of exceptional bravery and then sinks to the depths of degradation after an unhappy marriage in London. The picture portrays life in far-off India, where, in English garrisons and native villages, Leigh Dering, a young English officer, first distinguishes himself as the hero of Fort Akbar, and then sounds all the depths of evil ways among the native grog-sellers' huts and opium dives. Beautiful scenic effects are a part of this superb new picture including a native uprising when the garrison of Akbar is stormed by the Hindus and the British occupants are threatened with death.

DOROTHY DALTON—RIVOLI

The expense to which the large motion picture companies go to obtain the proper scenes for their pictures was again illustrated in "A Romantic Adventuress," the adaptation of the Charles Belmont Davis story, "A Winter City Favorite," in which Dorothy Dalton will be seen the first half of the week at the Rivoli. The script called for Miss Dalton, who had the part of a dancer, to make a hit at a first night of a new revue in New York. Believing it impossible to adequately reproduce this scene in the studio, Famous Players leased the Park theater, which has housed many notable productions, several days for a number of important shots. Several hundred extras were employed to form the audience and at the conclusion of Miss Dalton's dance their applause was genuine. Another of those gloom chasing comedies that makes care a thing of the past, is other half of the program, when Buster Keaton, the man whose missing smile makes them all smile, appears in his second starring two-reeler as "Convict 13." As the diminutive wearer of the comical mantle of Fatty Arbuckle, Buster Keaton more than fulfills the mirthful role made famous by the rotund master of slapstick. His years of association with Fatty in the hilarious features have made him well known to the thousands of motion picture followers.

TARZAN FILM PACKS BIJOU

Full houses all day Sunday greeted the first presentation of "The Revenge of Tarzan," the latest of the Tarzan stories by Edgar Rice Burroughs. The most thrilling moment in a program of thrills is Tarzan's fight with a lion. Bare-handed the mighty hero of the play battles with the king of jungle beasts and finally after a desperate conflict emerges in triumph. Among other tense moments are the wreck and explosion of the yacht in which Tarzan is sailing to Africa, his long swim to shore; the many wild animals in their native haunts, Tarzan's hunt for food in the jungle. The picture will be shown today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

"LISTEN LESTER"

John Cort's "Listen Lester," musical comedy, at the La Crosse theater Wednesday, January 26, sparkles with wit and humor. The music is of the "jazzy," lilting, merry kind that lingers long in the memory. The real success of the piece is its general lightness and frothiness. It is a dancing piece, and every member of the company, including the chorus, is an expert in the terpsichorean art. That popular comedian, Fred Heider, who was prominent in the cast during its long run in New York is the featured member. Other well known musical comedy favorites are June Roberts, Delano Dell, Earl Higley, Frances X. Donegan, Rene Brown, Betty Kirkbride, Claire Grenville, Dorothy Roberts, the four entertainers, and a dandy dancing chorus.

CADDOCK SURE OF PINNING LEWIS IN MONDAY NIGHT BOUT

States that He is Not Afraid of Lewis' Headlock; Neither to Offer Alibi

NEW YORK.—Earl Caddock and Strangler Lewis are all set for their catch at Seventy-first regiment armory Monday night.

Caddock is confident he will defeat the champion and does not care whether the strangler used the headlock or not.

"He can go as far as he wants," Caddock said today. "I guess I will have something to show when the time comes and that fellow is not going to have it all his own way."

Both Lewis and Caddock are satisfied with their condition and will not have any alibi to offer no matter what the result is. Caddock is positive he will leave the arena as champion, while Lewis is just as confident he will retain his title.

Lewis is going right ahead developing his skull crushing headlock hold, for that is the clamp that brought him the title. It ought to be an exciting struggle.

ERNEST DILLENBERG OF WAUKON, DIES WHILE SEATED IN A CHAIR

WAUKON, Iowa.—Death overtook Ernest Dillenberg Thursday at his home in this city, coming as he sat in a chair in his home. His health had been poor for the past several years, and he had been confined to his home during the winter, but had been feeling much better and on the day of his death was planning on walking down town. Death was due to heart trouble. Mr. Dillenberg was widely known in Northeast Iowa, being prominent for many years in business and financial circles in Allamakee county. He was vice president of the First National bank of this city, and was reputed to be one of the wealthiest citizens of the county. He was past sixty years of age.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Clarice, and a son Harold, both grown.

Fish Chasing by Airplane

The aerial fish patrol of the Pacific Ocean has proven a great success and it is more than probable that the fish catch will be trebled by the use of the airplanes. Fishing boats now lose no time in cruising idly about searching for fish. By means of the laid-air patrol they are constantly at work and no time is lost.

The United States issued paper currency for as small sums as three cents after the Civil war.

BENCH-WARMER MAY STAR FOR YANKS

FRANK "LEFTY" O'DOUL

BY DEAN SNYDER

One year on the bench is a long wait for a big league recruit.

It's double time to a youngster who has a sleeveful of pitching talent.

Frank "Lefty" O'Doul batted a thousand as a bench-warmer for the Yankees last season.

His gifted left arm might as well have been in a sling. Huggins was afraid to trust a youngster—one of the most promising the Pacific Coast league ever sent up to the big show.

But "Lefty" is to get his delayed trial next season.

Ranks With Mails

The swap which sent Mogridge and Thormahlen to Boston leaves New York's left-handed pitching business up to Harry Harper and O'Doul.

The California kid will try to make the mite manager regret his oversight.

O'Doul came up to the big show from the Frisco Seals rated as the equal of Walter Mails.

Mails pitched the Cleveland Indians into a pennant by winning seven starts for Tris Speaker.

Cobb Boosts Him

Now Huggins is wondering if he had the pennant key on his bench for a whole season and didn't use it to unlock the door.

O'Doul's chief booster—not including the entire Pacific Coast—is Ty Cobb.

"The Detroit club will claim the coaster in a minute if Huggins wants to waive him out of the league," says the jewel of Georgia."

That's a mighty fine compliment coming from the highest salaried player in baseball.

Fans for Him

More glory is given the youngster by Oscar Vitt. He thinks "Lefty" has the stuff to make a champion.

O'Doul will be watched with keen interest to see whether Huggins played a good hunch or a lame one in making a wall flower out of a possible star.

Look out for "Lefty" O'Doul in 1921.

Thanks to the Electric Furnace

There are many valuable metals which we could not know in their pure form if it were not for the electric furnace. This remark applies particularly to the newly discovered metals, such as tantalum (used for pen points, because it will not corrode), chromium (which hardens steel, uranium (for irridescent glass) molybdenum (for giving a fine blue to pottery glazes, vanadium (for gold bronze), and selenium, the oxide of which gives a beautiful ruby color to glass for railroad and other signal lights.

WILLARD ON TRAIL THAT LEADS BACK TO HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

Leaves for the East to Complete Training for Match With Jack Dempsey

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion, who is scheduled to meet Jack Dempsey, the champion, at New York, March 17, in a bout to regain the title, left here Monday for the east, where he will complete his training for the match.

Willard was accompanied by Ray Archer, his manager. The former champion has been training for several months at his farm near Lawrence, Kan.

To Train in New York

According to Archer, they expected to go to New York city first, after which they would make a business trip to Boston. Late this month, he said, Willard expects to establish headquarters somewhere in New York.

Willard declared he had decided to make his future home in Hollywood, Calif. There he lived until several years ago, when the family removed to the farm near Lawrence. Willard said he was planning to sell most of the property he now owns in Kansas.

Thinks He Can Win

Discussing the coming fight with Dempsey, Willard said:

"If I didn't think I could win back the title I lost in Toledo I wouldn't enter the ring again. I would rather let the fight tell the story. I shall have the best corps of sparring partners that money can buy and I shall be ready."

UNITED STATES SHOULD HAVE CONSERVATION DEPARTMENT

BY COL. JOHN. H. WALLACE, JR.
(Commissioner (Ala) Department of Conservation)

Each passing year records the diminution of some great natural resource. Our forests are being devastated and when they are gone an indescribable hardship will be visited upon the people: our mines are being exhausted; our fisheries are being depleted; our national parks are being exploited for selfish gain; our big game and our migratory bird-life must be protected by rigid laws, vigorously enforced, to save such resources from certain depletion and threatened distinction.

Due to the departmental organization of the United States government all Federal statutes relating to conservation, while they in reality are of paramount importance are relegated for administration to the obscurity of a bureau, hence many of the conservation laws enacted by Congress have utterly failed to achieve the purposes for which they are designed.

It is a notable and much discussed fact that the secretary of each of the Departments of the Federal Government, which administers any of the conservation laws of the United States, is presumably selected by reason of his knowledge and equipment for the main purpose for which the particular department, of which he is the head, was created and not because of his experience or knowledge concerning the application and enforcement of our conservation statutes.

For example, the Bureau of Fisheries, is under the Department of Commerce and Labor. The Bureau of Biological Survey, which administers the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, is under the Department of Agriculture. The Geological Survey and the National Park Service is under the Department of the Interior. The Forest Service is under the Department of Agriculture.

It is palpable to every thinking mind that all bureaus and commissions which administer or enforce the statutes of the United States, which have for their object the conservation of the various natural resources of this country, should be grouped under a United States Department of Conservation, created by an Act of Congress, with a secretary who shall be a member of the president's cabinet.

Conservation Department Needed

The creation of a Department of Conservation would unquestionably result in a more economical administration of our various conservation statutes and would undoubtedly eventuate in a higher degree of efficiency of service than exists at the present time.

In the very nature of things, it is utterly impossible for the secretary of a Department to give that degree of personal attention, so essential to a successful administration, to other than that which he considers the paramount thing in his department.

A Department of Conservation directed by a secretary of vision, enthusiasm and of dynamic force would carry great prestige and would exert a tremendous influence in evolving and securing the enactment of adequate legislation for the preservation of our fast diminishing natural resources.

In proportion that our country preserves its natural wealth by the same measure will it continue to prosper and grow in wealth and power. A Department of Conservation will emphasize and bring the work of conservation into prominence and prove a great incentive to capable young men to train themselves for this wonderful work which requires the application of scientific knowledge of the very highest order.

Our country cannot progress to the full measure of our marvelous possibilities unless Congress speedily enacts a statute creating a Department to save from obliteration by rapacious hands that portion of our pristine wealth which has escaped destruction or being converted into gold by the plunderers of the people's birthright.

The establishment of a Department of Conservation will infuse new life and vigor into our existing conservation laws, additional measures will be passed by Congress, and future generations will have handed down to them at least a fair portion of the Treasures of Nature's store-house, whereas if Congress fails to do this, within a few years the natural wealth of the country will have disappeared to such an alarming xtent that Congress, terrified and in dismay, will appropriate billions in a futile, frantic effort to rehabilitate our natural resources, when, at the present time, only thousands would be required to save them.

To delay the matter is to invite waste, destruction and disaster; to act promptly means that posterity will inherit a goodly portion of the natural wealth handed down to us.

Must Act at Once

A bill, H. R. 14757, to create a Department of Conservation, was introduced in the House of Representatives on December 8, 1920, by the Hon. John McDuffie, Representative of the First Congressional District of the state of Alabama. This bill is comprehensive in every detail, however, its drafters are not wedded to any particular language; they merely seek the passage of a measure which will achieve the purpose for which it is intended.

The attention of those conservationists, especially interested in the protection of birds and game, is directed to Section 4 of the Bill, which creates a Bureau of Birds and Game. The scientist occupies an important place in our national official life, but he should not be permitted to hamper or retard the development of practical plans for the preservation of the valuable fauna of America, hence this section.

I desire to ask every conservationist in America to address, immediately, a strong apepal to the members of the House and the Senate from their respective States also to the members-elect, directing their attention to the bill mentioned, urging them to accord such measure their vigorous and active support. I importune you not to delay this important matter, but to act promptly and decisively with the absolute assurance that your Senators and Representatives in Congress will be delighted to receive from you an expression concerning this important measure, and that they will not long remain impervous to the requests to pass the bill which will be lodged with them by their determined constituents.

Coloring Arc-Lamp Globes

The purple color of arc-lamp globes is due to the use of manganese in the glass. The manganese is used to counteract the greenish color which comes from ferrous salts in the glass, but the action of light on the manganese only substitutes a purple coloration for a greenish hue.—Merrill Herald.

INTRODUCTION OF BLAINE MEASURES FEATURES SESSION

Administration Program Embodied in Legislation Presented During the Past Week

BILL CALLS FOR INITIATIVE REFERENDUM AND RECALL

Shadow of 1922 Campaign Expected to Influence Legislature

THE introduction of bills promulgating the administration policies and program featured the first week of the legislative session.

The senate saw the introduction of three of the administration's biggest legislative projects. Senator Henry Huber, Dane county's representative, introduced the measures which propose to place into the constitution and on the statute books the initiative and referendum, recall of elective officers and recall, by the legislature, of appointive state officials.

Senator Herman J. Severson presented one of the administration's bills covering the income tax. This bill proposes to establish an income tax, based on the same taxing scheme as is used to obtain funds for soldier bonus bills, namely by the surtax plan.

These bills came to the upper house early in the week. Their early presentation indicates the administration is seeking early consideration of its proposals, to get them voted on before the session drags out and hostility crystallizes. There is at present no outspoken organized anti-administration sentiment, but rather a spirit of willingness to go half-way.

This is a favorable condition, considering that the majority in both houses are not of the La Follette-Nonpartisan faction which controls the administrative powers of the state. It permits a less political consideration of the administration's measures.

Another reason is that, as the session drags out, jockeying and politics will increase. Straight republicans and the La Follette-Nonpartisans gradually will view measures more for their political advantage, and be less willing to come together.

Over all, even though it is unspoken, looms the 1922 campaign, when the La Follette-Nonpartisans will make their bid for control of the complete state machinery and to return to congress Senator Robert M. La Follette.

As the session advances, this fact will permeate to a great extent the position of both groups and will figure largely in their action on measures.

It also is evident that the administration is assisting as much as possible to expedite the work of the legislature.

Several older members of both houses were absent the entire week, arranging matters at home for hard work on the important committees of which they are chairmen, Senators Timothy Burke, George Buck, George Skogmo, David Jennings, Theodore Benfey and Henry Bennett were all away. Every bill introduced in the senate has been bulletined for a committee hearing. The judiciary, finance, education and public welfare and state affairs committees will meet during the week, to consider information on bills sent to them.

Joint Committee Busy

Several committee meetings have been set for the assembly, though the lower house is somewhat behind the upper in getting underway. The joint finance committee will plunge into budget requests of state departments and institutions without parley. Several large appropriation demands will be taken up at the hearing Tuesday afternoon.

Greatest interest in the committee's work will center on its recommendations regarding budget requests of the university and educational departments and institutions.

Despite the claims of many concerning the deluge of bills that would come with the opening of the legislature, there have been relatively few in either house. Experienced legislators who found themselves too far away from home to break away for the week-end are inclined to take a doleful view of affairs. They point to the fact that the number of bills introduced are few, compared to former sessions. It indicates a "watchful waiting" policy on both sides, they say.

"The game at this session," one prominent legislator said, "is going to be different from that of the last three. At those sessions the game was legislation. This time it is to prevent legislation.

Attitude Different

"I really look for a short session, though I know, of course, they always say this at the beginning. But there is a different attitude here. The line between the factions is sharp, though not emphasized as yet.

"But it will come out sharply before we are through. Each group is watching the other and you can't watch and be worried about bills."

Governor Blaine's special message to the legislature on educational legislation will not be given the houses until February.

His plans for a message to cover this phase have been abandoned for this month, following an announcement by Senator George L. Buck, Racine, that he would introduce a bill providing for a pooling of all educational boards under a central management. The governor will await the stand of the legislature on Buck's bill. Just what his attitude is toward the Buck measure is not quite clear, but it is understood he will be ready to accept it in a modified form.

The proposal in Buck's announced measure to include the University of Wisconsin in the central board has not met a favorable reception.

One big educational leader declared he favored a combination of all educational activities, with the exception of the university.

Appointments Awaited

Considerable interest has been aroused for the coming week's activities in the senate, due to the information that Blaine intends to send to the upper house the names of four appointees for major state offices. These are assumed to be: Superintendent of public property, tax commissioner, member of the industrial commission and a railroad commission member.

No word or intimation has come from the executive office as to likely candidates for the positions. Three of the offices carry a $5,000 a year salary, with a six year term of office. The superintendent of public property gets $4,000 a year and holds office only two years.

Two names have been mentioned with considerable insistance for appointment. Judge Charles Rosa, Beloit, is touted as the successor to Nils P. Haugen on the tax commission, and J. D. Morrissey, Superior, has been talked of as the man for superintendent of public property.

Miss Maud Neprud, Madison, woman member of the state board of control, whose term expires February 1, may be reappointed, it is rumored.

While no known opposition has been expressed against acceding to the governor's nominations, there may develop some exciting moments. The action on the governor's selections, if they come in this week, probably will feature the week's legislative doings.

STOCK MARKET ACTIVE

Trading Broadens With Higher Prices Prevailing

NEW YORK—There was a perceptible broadening of the market at higher prices during Monday's trading, despite intermittent offerings of shorts. Equipments were especially prominent, Pressed Steel Car common rising seven points, and the preferred 4½. Railway Steel Springs and Crucible, Lackawanna, Republic and Sloss-Sheffield Steels were strong, as well as Baldwin Locomotive, General Electric, Studebaker and allied issues. Oils rallied easily and leathers, tobacco, sugar and paper issues joined the further gains among shippers. Delaware, Lackawanna and Western extended its gain to ten points, other strong rails including Reading, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific and Pittsburgh and West Virginia.

Exchange on London was firm, but call loans held at last week's prevailing rate of seven per cent.

On the stock exchange the week opened with a continuance of last Saturday's rally. The reported success of the Belgian loan issued in this market as indicated by the immediate closing of the subscription books was probably a sentimental factor. Early dealings showed gains of large fractions to 1½ points in shippings, coppers and motors as represented by Atlantic Gulf, American Smelting, Anaconda Copper, Studebaker, Goodrich and Bosch Magneto. A seven point rise in Delaware, Lackawanna and Western featured the rails. Bethlehem Steel was under further pressure, however, as were also the Mexican and European oils and some of the minor specialties.

Money tendencies became firmer in the last hour and such leaders as Mexican Petroleum, Crucible and Asphalt led the reaction of 1 to 3 points. The close was irregular.

WHEAT MARKET STIFFENS

Indications of Continued Export Demand Has Bullish Influence

CHICAGO, Ill.—Wheat prices developed fresh strength Monday, influenced by signs of continued export demand. France was said to be asking for offers of 900,000 bushels. Bulls contended that allowing for the clearance of large amounts of wheat already sold to Europe, a close adjustment for the remainder of the season was indicated. Opening prices, which varied from unchanged figures to 1½c higher, with March $1.67¼ to $1.68¾ and May $1.58 to ½, were followed by a material upturn all around, and then something of a reaction.

Despite big receipts, corn ascended with wheat. A sharp falling off in arrivals hereafter was predicted. After opening unchanged to ⅜c higher, including May at 68¾ to ⅞c the market scored general gains, and then receded somewhat.

Seaboard demand for corn helped later to lift prices still more. The close was nervous at ⅞ to 1⅛c net advance with May 69¼ to ½c.

Oats sympathized with the strength of other cereals, starting ⅜c off to a like advance, May 44¼ to ⅜c and later hardening for all deliveries.

Provisions were firmer in line with hogs and grain.

MAN WAS CREATED TO THINK, IS ROWLISON'S WORD TO STUDENTS

Pastor of First Congregational Addresses High School Graduating Class

GREATEST ADVANCEMENT MADE IN LAST 100 YEARS, HE SAYS

Man Made to be God's Comrade in Building Kingdom

The Rev. Carlos C. Rowlison, pastor of the First Congregational church, delivered a sermon before the graduating class of the La Crosse high school in the school auditorium Sunday afternoon.

The text of the sermon was: "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord; shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven."—Matt. 7:21.

Mr Rowlison's sermon follows:

"My recollection is that I spoke to a class, graduating from this high school five or six years ago, from this text. But you are a new generation, and besides this is practically a new sermon—a new illustration of the principle emphasized by the Master here.

"The text implies the purpose for which man was placed upon the earth.

"I. Man is built for action, for achievement.

"The relative size of man's head and his body, compared with those of other animals, is an interesting study. No other animal, unless he be so small in both brain power and in body that he does not signify very much has a head anything like so large in comparison with his body as has man.

Man Created to Think

"Therefore it is evident that man is created to think, and that his superiority over other animals is because of this capacity. We sometimes think of education just as the process of teaching us to think.

"But more and more we are coming to see that our thinking is significant only as it is related to action. Our thinking is to control our acting. By thinking we are able to extend our bodies—that is, the instrument of our wills—far out into the world around us.

"Invention and the development of machinery are but the extension of the arm of man.

"The conquest of the world is the object of this extension of man's physical capacity. At the creation of the world it was suggested that it was man's job to replenish the earth and subdue it. (Genesis 1:28). The 8th Psalm indicates that man was created but little lower than God, and was appointed to have dominion over the works of God.

"Man has made more advancement in mastering the world in the past 100 years than in any other 1,000 years of his history. This has been accomplished because of systematic and widespread enlightenment. The development of the capacity to think and of freedom to act, on the part of the masses of men, is the great cause of the present advancement in mechanical mastery.

To be Comrade of God

"But just here is the point of limitation on the ideals of our day.

"For man is not only created to master the physical universe, but supremely to become a comrade of God in the creative task of building the kingdom of heaven.

"The capacity to act means a controlled and disciplined will. We are not autonomatons—mere jumping-jacks. There is no true human action that is not permeated by the moral motive. Any other action is simply animal action, possibly of a highly-intellectual sort.

"Therefore, no one is educated who is not trained to do the right at any cost. Our definition of education has been entirely too much limited to intellectual development in recent years. It is a moral duty to hold the mind to the intellectual task. But it is also a necessity of life that the body shall be controlled, not only by the clear purpose of intellectual decision, but supremely by a knowledge of right and wrong and the capacity to shape life for the right.

Moral Discipline Greater

"That is to say, the creative task required by moral discipline is superior to the task of subduing the physical forces of the universe.

"Think of the ruin which has come to the world by the highly developed capacity to control physical forces, without the supreme direction of the moral creative purpose of transforming the earth into the kingdom of heaven!

"Even when the big guns were booming, war had not reached the climax of its horror. Even the hell of the trenches was not equal to the hell so prevalent in many parts of devastated Europe today. Murdered nations, starving millions, untold multitudes of incapacitated men and women, the rising generation starving, homeless, ignorant—inevitable highwaymen, anarchists, savages, struggling for existence as men ten thousand years ago struggled up from the lowest animal status to that of something a little higher—all because the highly trained men of our day turned their capacity to the murderous art of war and hate, instead of turning it to the constructive program of building the kingdom of heaven.

Annihilation if Another War Comes.

"We are warned that if ever the dogs of war are released again, the human race will be annihilated. Even now many writers are telling us that the white race has already committed suicide. We are simply gasping out our last stage act of a superior race. They tell us that the future of the world must be with the yellow or the black race, unless the next war annihilates them, too.

"Put over against this the creative values of the life of active good-will—of building life-saving and life-giving stations everywhere—hospitals and dispensaries and food supplies; schools and every enlightening influence; the proclamation of the gospel of love and comradeship and friendship; between nations and classes, between man and man everywhere and in all things.

"Are you educated? Are you gaining a controlled life? Are you training simply to subdue the world and to gain your own little personal success, or are you gaining that mastery which makes you creators of the kingdom of heaven?

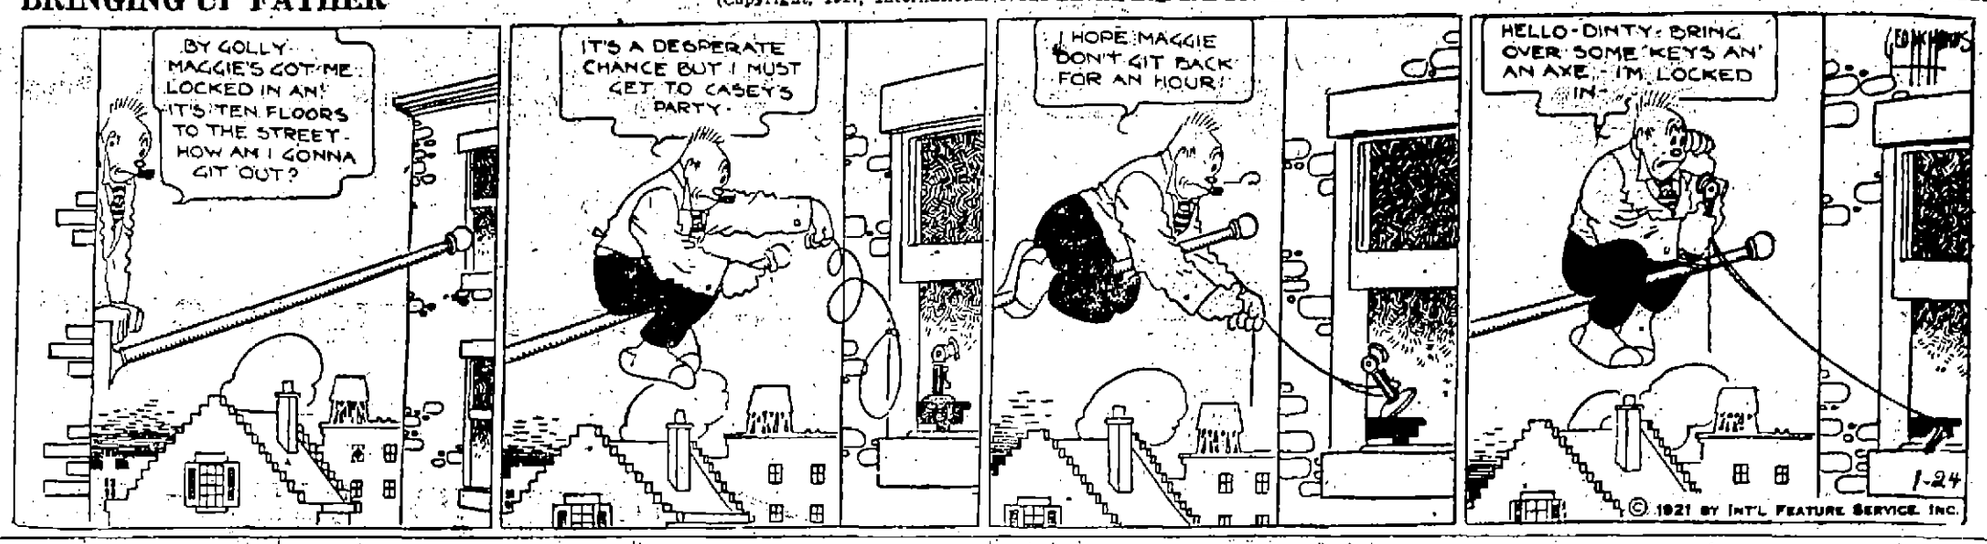

"Rather than that you may be superior animals, mere supermen, may I not call you to be sons and daughters of God, comrades with him in the great creative tasks of life? Why should you not be teachers and ministers and missionaries and physicians and statesmen, the servants of your fellowmen in the higher callings of life, workers in the great materials of the moral life? That we may all be, whatever calling we may choose in life, but the world today supremely needs these masters of the spirit, these moulders of character, these who art primarily workers together with God.

"Do you know the will of God? Can you do it? 'Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven.'"
